Industry-Sanctioned Code of Conduct

Escapes RV Club began working toward a fair and reasonable etiquette practice for overnight parking at private businesses’ parking lots back in the 1990s. Through sheer determination and the support of thousands of RVers, today we have a united code of conduct that is widely accepted throughout the RV industry.

We thank all the RV clubs who have joined hands with us in an effort to protect RVers’ rights on this issue.

Remember, each of us plays an important role in keeping the Good Neighbor Policy intact. First, you should always abide by the code of conduct outlined in this policy, even when someone tells you otherwise. For instance, when a manager grants you permission to spend more than one night, we feel you should decline their offer. If you plan to spend more than one night, disconnect your towed and tour the area, etc., a campground would be more suitable. Second, you should help prevent abuse by educating other RVers who may not be aware of these industry-sanctioned standards.

Please feel free to pass this information on! Download copies of the Good Neighbor Policy. Help us maintain the gracious hospitality shared with us through RV-friendly businesses, like Walmart and Cracker Barrel and others, by being considerate guests. One way to show your gratitude is by writing a brief thank you and including a copy of your receipt of purchased items (food, meals, or gas) that you bought during your overnight stay. Other ways are to pick up litter or return shopping carts to the collection bins. Help us maintain the good relationship we have built by being good patrons!
